STATE NEWS

Androscoggin

Among the many public events in Lewiston few are more generally attended or more popular in their management than the annual drill and ball of the Lewiston Sheridan Guards. They always draw a big house, and fill floor and gallery. This year, the Sheridans again give their competitive drill for the company's medal. The date of the drill and ball is Thursday, April 12th. They will have a superb orchestra.

The lasters at the Moses [illegible] factory in Auburn, numbering about forty, went out Tuesday afternoon. The firm say that the lasters went out because the firm declined to grant them an advance. The firm state they are willing to grant their request temporarily, but are unwilling to sign an agreement to the effect that the advanced prices will be maintained for one year.

Joel S. Boomer, father of the boy who so unfortunately shot little Alice Owen in the Barker Mill district, Auburn, Saturday afternoon, says that it is not only true that they didn't know that the boy's revolver was loaded, but they didn't know that he had a revolver, and that the boy bought it Saturday and had had it only about two or three hours up to the time of the occurrence. The boy says that he thought he had fired all the chambers and that he snapped it just for fun. The little girl is not permanently injured, Mr Boomer says. The boy's parents feel greatly pained by the affair. The little girl is seven years old and the boy twelve.

The smartest old gentleman of this county is Nathaniel Young, of Houlton, who was ninety-five years old Sunday. He lives with his son Jabez, and during the past winter has helped take care of four head of cattle and two horses, split wood, shovelled paths and made himself useful generally. Mr Young has a brother living in South Paris who was ninety-three Monday.

Mr Alonzo J Parker, son of Rev Edwin Parker and the last of a family of eight children, died March 25, aged fifty-eight years, two months and nineteen days. He was one of the first residents of Sherman, his father moving in, March, 1840, the fifth family to come here. The pall bearers, Joseph R Cushman, Alfred Cushman, Jr, Cyrus Cushman and Levi C. Caldwell, were schoolmates and among the first residents of the town. Mr. Parker leaves a wife, four sons, and three daughters.

Cumberland

Mr P. A. Durgan, second keeper of the Halfway Rock Lighthouse, has resigned his position. He had a very narrow escape from drowning, last Thursday. Standing on the Rock, he shot some sea ducks. The dory was launched and Mr Durgan entered it to get the ducks, but the sea was so rough the dory was ended over, throwing Mr. Durgan, fifteen or twenty feet, alighting on his face. He gained a foothold on the Rock, but was swept off again and again, until finally he was rescued by First Keeper Holbrook.

Kennebec

Mr. G. W. Collins, of Chelsea, who was brought to the Insane Hospital last July, dropped dead, Tuesday morning, in the Hospital yard, while out walking with attendants. The cause was pleurisy of the heart. Mr. Collins was between seventy-five and seventy-six years of age.

Mr George Farnham, of Winthrop, the brakeman on the Maine Central railroad who was injured last autumn by being hit on the head by some miscreant while the train was approaching Auburn station, has nearly recovered from the accident and is acting as baggage master on the train which runs from Oakland to Skowhegan. Since the accident, a portion of the time he has been unconscious.

Albert Leach is canvassing for a butter factory or creamery to be established at West Camden. Mr Leach is meeting with good success thus far, having secured the promise of one hundred and fifty cows and $700. Others have signified their intention to help the thing along. If enough encouragement is given the factory will be built the coming fall.

Gen Sheridan is busy on the proofs of his forthcoming book [illegible] In the light of recent events [illegible] should be [illegible] the [illegible] he wrote the volume.

One of the judges at the dog show is a woman who for years has been an admirer of the noble St. Bernard and a close student of the breed. She is the first American woman in such a position.

John L. Sullivan's hair is growing gray rapidly since his fight with Mitchell. If he will [illegible] and devote himself to Browning [illegible] he may yet regain his former place as Boston's favorite son.

The oldest man in Indiana is said to be [illegible] County, of Wood Township, of whom there is said to be incontestable evidence that he is [illegible] years old. He was born in Ireland. He still earns his living by farm work.

A workman in a New York sugar factory lost an arm in the machinery and settled with the proprietor for $4,500 damages. Of this sum his lawyer claimed all but $1,000, but Judge Brady of the Supreme Court has disallowed this extortion.

The statement is made that Mrs. Bogs[illegible] of [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] of [illegible], who attended the Women's Convention in Washington last week, could not speak a word of English a few years ago, but are now able to converse readily in our tongue.

Mr Vesuvius [illegible] thermometer for Naples. The direction in which the smoke from the crater blows indicates unerringly a coming change of weather twenty-four hours in advance. Also the approach of the hot and depressing sirocco.

A wealthy and eccentric lady of Philadelphia, having exhausted her finger space in displaying her jewels, wears a brilliant ring on her thumb. This, however, is only going back to a fashion of two or three centuries ago. Then noblemen wore their signet rings on their thumbs.

It is proposed to convert about five thousand acres of land in [illegible] County, Ga., into a national hunting ground, with a hotel, club house, etc., and make it a great resort for hunters. The tract will be stocked with all kinds of game. Gov Gordon and other well known men are interested in the scheme.

The Parisian courts are severe in dealing out punishment for [illegible] accidents. The court at Odessa has sentenced the local director and the engineer of the Steam Tramway Company there to three months' imprisonment and to pay a compensation of 1,000 roubles for a fatal accident which occurred on the line.

One of the finest houses on the estate of W. H. Marshall, near Athens, Georgia, caught fire a few days ago and would have been destroyed but for the bravery of his daughter, who seized a twenty-foot ladder, and carrying it one hundred yards with buckets to the burning building, then mounting the ladder with a bucket, she carried up water. She soon had the flames under control.

Lawrence D. Depew, a brother of Chauncey M. Depew, is a successful cracker manufacturer, living in Detroit, Mich. He is a few years younger than his famous brother. "Larry" Depew, as he is generally known in Detroit, is a college graduate, but he is not an after-dinner speaker. He is fond of yachts, dogs, horses and guns. He married the daughter of A. M. Copland, postmaster at Detroit.

There recently arrived in Los Angeles, Cal., about one hundred young English girls, who were sent there through the instrumentality of Miss Elizabeth Parker, an English woman widely known for her philanthropic work in behalf of her sex. Unfortunately the girls were not of the domestic class required, but were principally governesses, ladies' maids and nurses, a kind of help seldom needed in that country. The result has been disastrous to the girls, and many have returned home. Others, who had not the means to return, are said to be in destitute circumstances.

The following anecdote of Washington Irving and John Jacob Astor is told by a correspondent of the Troy Times: "As Irving was very intimate with Astor, the latter said one day: 'Mr. Irving, how much shall I put you down for in my will?' 'Nothing at all,' was the prompt reply. 'Thanks for the offer, but I do not ask or desire anything.' 'Well, then, Mr Irving,' exclaimed the old man, 'I shall make you one of my executors, and this will bring something handsome.' So he did, and Irving received not less than $15,000 in fees, without doing any more work than signing his name."

Mr Labouchere thinks there will soon be a reconciliation between the Duke of Cumberland and the court of Berlin, and the private fortune of the late King of Hanover will be restored to his family. The late emperor was most anxious to come to terms with the duke, but he was always overruled by Prince Bismarck, who detests the Guelphs. The new emperor and empress are likely to act in accordance with their own wishes, and it has always been well known that they deeply lamented the manner in which the Duke of Cumberland was treated, and strongly disapproved of the disgraceful treachery by which King George's money was obtained. The amount exceeds 2,000,000 sterling.

Henry L. Levy, a young New Yorker not yet twenty years of age, was a Wall street messenger boy a year ago. He had received a public school education in that city and from his earliest years had shown a wonderful artistic talent. Last July Levy sailed for France and became an art student. He aspired to a scholarship in l'Ecole des Beaux-Arts, the famous school supported by the French Government. His ambition seemed to his friends in this country to be ridiculous. Out of 340 aspirants, however, some of whom were mature artists, Levy not only stood among the eighty who were admitted to the school, but won first place over all competitors. He obtained the highest record for drawing from life. His success makes him an art pupil of the French Government till he is thirty.

Planets in April

[Providence Journal.]

Mars is Morning star until the 11th, and then becomes the evening star. He comes to the front on the April as well as on the March record, for he is in the full realization of his short lived supremacy. Mars in opposition is an imposing sight as the planet dons his robes of fiery red, and impresses the beholder with his aggressive air and warlike bearing. Our celestial neighbor presented the same aspect that we now describe to observers when astronomy was in its infancy, thousands of years ago, and for this reason was honored with the name of Mars the god of war. No other star that glimmers in the celestial concave so well deserves the title. The opposition of Mars, the great epoch in his course, occurs on the 11th at one o'clock in the morning. The sun, the earth and Mars are then in a straight line, with the earth in the centre, and when the sun sets, Mars will soon after be seen rising in the east. The opposition, though favorable, does not bring our neighbor within his nearest range, an event so much desired in these days of increasing telescopic facilities. The observer who desires to study Mars at his best, must wait till 1892 when the planet is near perihelion, and the earth near aphelion. The two planets are then about as near as possible, or 35,000,000 miles apart. Even with the most powerful telescope not much can be seen at such a distance. The divisions of land and water, the snow-capped poles, the clouds, the curious and unaccountable double canals, and the two tiny moons nearly exhaust the list of terrestrial observations thus far recorded.

Dr Langley says an observer on the moon under the best telescopic conditions might perceive such an army as Napoleon led to Russia if it moved in a dark solid column across the snow. It is barely possible that one of the largest steamships might be seen under very favorable circumstances as a moving dot, and it is probable that such a conflagration as the great fire of Chicago would be visible to the lunar telescope as a red fish star on the right side of our planet.

The mean distance of the moon is 240,000 miles. The least distance of Mars is 35,000,000 miles. The possibility of obtaining any proof of the existence of life on our outer planetary neighbor with our present means of observation is not encouraging. Nor the less do we hope that the telescope of the Lick Observatory will win renown by picking up the nipple of moons or solving the mystery of the double canals at the present Martian opposition.

Mars will be beautiful to behold during the whole month, showing his ruddy face in the southeast as soon as it is dark enough for the stars to come out, and shining with resplendent lustre during nearly the entire night. He is approaching his bright companion Spica, and on the 13th, will meet and pass the star, after that time being west of and receding from the star.

The right ascension of Mars on the 1st is 13h. 37m., his declination is [illegible] south, his diameter is [illegible] and he is in the constellation Virgo.

Mars rises on the 1st at [illegible] P. M. He sets on the 30th at 3h. 15m. A. M.

Uranus is morning star until the 4th and after that time is evening star. His opposition with the sun occurs on the 4th when he changes his quarters from the sun's western side to his eastern. Planets on the eastern side of the sun are classed as evening stars and planets on the western side are classed as morning stars. An opposition to Uranus bears no comparison in importance with the opposition of Mars, or Jupiter or Saturn but brings him to his nearest point to the earth and makes it possible to obtain a glimpse of him as a star of the sixth magnitude. The unaided human eye can correctly perceive the smallest of the four giant planets as he slowly treads his appointed path among the stars. His nearest as at present, he is 1,710,000,000 miles away. Clear-sighted observers will find Uranus on moonless nights about 4° northwest of Spica and 2° southwest of Theta Virginis.

The right ascension of Uranus on the 1st is 12h. 58m., his declination is 5° 24′ south, his diameter is 3″.8, and he is in the constellation Virgo.

Uranus rises on the 1st at 6h. 17m. P. M. On the 30th he sets at 3h. 42m. A. M.

Saturn is evening star. His course during the month as well as that of Mars and Uranus is marked by an epoch. He is in quadrature with the sun on the 10th at 4 o'clock in the morning. At that time he is near the meridian at sunset, and after that time he will be found in the western sky, setting not far from midnight. He is no longer retrograding or moving westward, but has changed his path, is moving in a direct course or eastward, and is again approaching Praesepe, the small cluster in Cancer.

The right ascension of Saturn on the 1st is 8h. 5m., his declination is 20° 40′ north, his diameter is 17″.78 and he is in the constellation Cancer.

Saturn sets on the 1st at 2h. 28m. A. M. On the 30th he sets 0h. 37m. A. M.

Jupiter is morning star, or rather he is classed as morning star, because he is still on the western side of the sun. He is evening star in reality for he rises before eleven o'clock on the first of the month and before nine o'clock at its close. The April evenings will therefore be honored by the presence of this gem of the skies as well as with that of the less brilliant Mars and Saturn. Jupiter was superb in the small hours of starlit mornings in March, as he shone with radiant lustre amid the bright stars of Scorpio. He will be brighter in April, and will rise at a more convenient hour for observation. He is now retrograding or moving westward, and is therefore receding from Antares, being about 3° northwest of the star at the close of the month. The three bright planets that play the part of evening stars in April, have each a bright companion. Jupiter has Antares, Mars has Spica, and Saturn has Pollux and Procyon.

The right ascension of Jupiter on the 1st is 16h. 18m., his declination is 20° 2′ south, his diameter is 39″.8 and he is in the constellation Ophiuchus.

Jupiter rises on the 1st at 10h. 35m. P. M. On the 30th he rises at 8h. 31m. P. M.

Venus is morning star. There is little to be said of her course during the month, for she is so near the sun as almost to be lost to sight. She rises 50m. before the sun on the 1st and 38m. before him on 30th. She is in conjunction with Mercury, on the 13th at midnight, being at that time 1° 10′ south.

The right ascension of Venus on the 1st is 23h. 15m., her declination is 6° 21′ south, her diameter is 11″.6, and she is in the constellation Aquarius.

Venus rises on the 1st at 4h. 39m. A. M. On the 30th she rises at 4h. 5m. A. M.

Mercury is morning star. Since his western elongation on March 30th he has moved eastward, approaching Venus and overtaking her on the 13th.

The right ascension of Mercury on the 1st is 23h. 10m., his declination is 7° 26′ south; his diameter is 7″.2, and he is in the constellation Aquarius.

Mercury rises on the 1st 4h. 37m. A. M. On the 30th he rises at 4h. 24m. A. M.

Neptune is evening star. His position in the sky varies so little from month to month that it is scarcely perceptible in a short time, but it is well to keep the track of all the planets.

The right ascension of Neptune on the 1st is 3h. 44m., his declination is 18° 7′ north; his diameter is 2″.6, and he is in the constellation Taurus.

Neptune rises on the 1st at 9h. 55m. P. M. On the 30th he rises at 8h. 7m. P. M.

Mars, Uranus, Saturn, and Neptune are evening stars at the close of the month. Mercury, Venus and Jupiter are morning stars.

THE MOON.

The April moon fulls on the 26th at 1h. 22m. A. M. The moon two days after the last quarter is in conjunction with Mercury on the 8th at 0h. 6m. P. M., being 1° 16′ south. On the same day, the 8th, at 8h. 16m. P. M., she is in conjunction with Venus being 2° 23′ south. Southern observers will enjoy the most favorable conditions for a sight of these two planets in close companionship and in the neighborhood of the waning moon. The new moon of the 11th is in conjunction with Neptune on the 11th at 4h. 40m. A. M., being 3° 5′ south. On the 19th the day of the first quarter the moon is in close conjunction with Saturn at 7h. 29m. A. M., being 1° 5′ south. She is in conjunction with Uranus on the 24th at 0h. 5m. A. M., being 4° 17′ north. She is in conjunction on the same day the 24th, with Mars at 4h. 33m. P. M., being 3° 10m. north. She pays her respects to Jupiter last in the train, on the 27th the day after the full at 8h. 16m. P. M., being 3° [illegible] north. The moon the day after the full and Jupiter, now in his brightest phase, will make charming pictures in the southeastern sky on the evening of the 27th.

As spring opens signs of business activity begin to show themselves on all sides. Mr W. Hagten Singh will commence soon the construction of three Queen Anne cottages on the east side of Broadway between Masonic and Limerock streets, to be completed as soon as possible. Alderman L. A. Butler will build a very nice house on the corner of Union and Beech streets, plans for which are already made.

Mr Fred Perry will occupy his beautiful new house soon, which has been building the past winter and is now about ready for occupancy.

The proprietors of the Thorndike Hotel propose to enlarge the building by the addition of another story, making it four stories. The capacity of the hotel will be increased considerably by the enlargement.

Last year there was expended in the erection of new buildings here of all descriptions one hundred thousand dollars and the present indications are that there will be even more done in that line this year than last.

The City Government is discussing the advisability of electing a Supervisor of Schools to give his entire time to a careful supervision of our public schools. We have at present a School Committee of three paid a salary of three hundred dollars for the board. One is a physician with a very large practice, another is principal of one of our Grammar Schools, the other is depot master. All of them may be well qualified for the school officers by education and experience, but the time which they can give to the supervision of our schools is so limited that it practically amounts to nothing. If a suitable man can be obtained for a reasonable compensation the change will probably be made.

At one of the last meetings of the City Government, the Mayor addressed some very practical remarks to the joint convention of the boards, upon the sewerage system which perhaps at the present time has not arrived to the dignity of a system.

The Art Loan Exhibit on March 28, 29 and 30 at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary, of which Mrs G. M. Brainerd is President, and the Chautauqua Circle, was a great success both in the art display and financially. There were one hundred and twenty five pictures in the exhibition, most of them by our local artists, many of which would have done credit to professionals. There was one piece of bronze statuary exhibited by Hon. A. S. Rice, lawyer, that attracted considerable attention as being suggestive of the customs of the profession. A couple of lads had become involved in dispute over the ownership of an oyster which they had picked up, and submitted the question of ownership for equitable adjudication, to the lawyer. The lawyer with that bland smile which would indicate his consciousness of having rendered an important legal decision, stood eating the oyster, at the same time passing the shells to the boys. Mr. Whitford, the General Secretary, is proving himself to be very enterprising and exactly fitted for the work in which he is engaged. Among the active workers in the association are some of our most successful business men, such as G. M. Brainerd, President of the Bodwell Granite Company, E. H. Lawry, Secretary of the same company, Deacon H. H. Crie, F. J. Bicknell, A. W. Butler and Deacon W. S. D. Healdy and many others. The association in such hands can not fail to accomplish the noble objects of its organization.

The new Grammar school house at the northern part of our city is an ornament to that section. The style of architecture and design is very pleasing. It is a two-story, wood structure, with large, commodious, well lighted and ventilated rooms and spacious halls. The building has the most improved sanitary arrangements. It is heated throughout with a high pressure steam heating apparatus. It is just such a building as has long been needed in that portion of our city.

Our present, efficient City Treasurer, Mr Leander Weeks, was first elected in 1859, and has been re-elected each succeeding year for twenty-nine years. He has in reality grown old in honorable service to the city. No matter what political party has been in the ascendency, and there has been many changes in those years, his services have been considered of so valuable a character to the city that he has usually been re-elected with practical unanimity.

Hon D. N. Mortland, State Railroad Commissioner, C. F. Wood and W. A. Hill, left Monday morning for a trip south and west.

Chas. S. [illegible], son of Rev W. S. Roberts, and Walter V. [illegible], son of Rev L. L. Hanscom, arrived home from Philadelphia, last week, where they have been attending a course of medical lectures.

Easter was appropriately observed by all the city churches, and at most of them special services commemorative of the occasion were held. In the evening, the Baptist and Universalist Sabbath schools gave Easter concerts to large congregations.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

At the school meeting last Thursday evening Mr Samuel Garland was elected agent in district No 3. Mrs. Alice Hodge, [illegible] has been engaged to teach in this district. She is a successful teacher and gives excellent satisfaction.

Miss Clara Rogers has been very ill with pneumonia, but is recovering.

Dr. George A. Phillips of Ellsworth, is expecting to give a lecture here next Tuesday evening, on Wendell Phillips.

Miss Fannie Hardy of Brewer, has been visiting friends in town. Miss Hardy is a member of the senior class of Smith College, where she has taken high rank and has been elected class poetess.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor elected its officers last Friday evening. The following were elected: Capt. Horatio Whitmore, President; Miss Annie Atwood, Vice President; Mr. Frank Dudley, Secretary; Miss Hattie Tracy, Treasurer; Miss Blanche Pickard, organist; Mr. Justin Dudley, librarian.

There was a full attendance at the lecture given by Mr Manly Hardy of Brewer, at Town Hall, on Tuesday evening, April 3d. Mr Hardy was introduced by Capt. Horatio Whitmore and spoke for about an hour and a half, and was listened to with the closest attention, and was very heartily applauded at its close. His subject was "A trip to the south west, including a visit to California and the Yosemite valley." Mr Hardy is a very close observer and seems to forget nothing he sees, and the audience was highly entertained by the complete description he gave of the sights to be seen on such a trip. He closed by saying that California was a wonderful country, and, with all its praise, yet it had its disagreeable things, and on the whole, he thought it no better than Maine.

The Easter Concert, prepared by Miss Sarah Curtis and Miss Blondina Atwood, was fully attended and proved very interesting. The floral decorations were very beautiful and much care was spent in the preparation of the programme, which was as follows: Anthem, Praise ye the Lord; prayer by the pastor; responses by superintendent and school; hymn; Coronation; scripture reading; recitation by Miss [illegible] March; solo by Mr James Ware; recitation by Mr. Elmer [illegible]; scripture recitations by various classes; singing by the choir; reading by Mrs. Ella Temple; recitation by Mr James Ware; recitation by Miss Annie Eveleth; scripture witnesses of the Resurrection; singing, "Our Saviour"; anthem; benediction.

DYSPEPSIA

Causes its victims to be miserable, hopeless, confused and depressed in mind, very irritable, languid and drowsy. It is a disease which does not get well of itself. It requires careful persistent attention, and a remedy to throw off the causes and tone up the digestive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven just the required remedy in hundreds of cases.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, from which I have suffered two years. I tried many other medicines, but none proved so satisfactory as Hood's Sarsaparilla." THOMAS COOK, Brush Electric Light Co., New York City.

Sick Headache

"For the past two years I have been afflicted with severe headaches and dyspepsia. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and have found great relief. I cheerfully recommend it to all." MRS. E. F. ANNABLE, New Haven, Conn.

Mrs Mary C. Smith, Cambridgeport, Mass., was a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headache. She took Hood's Sarsaparilla and found it the best remedy she ever used.

Bangor, March 29th, 1888.

ttle Rhody is not a pivotal State, but may furnish a pointer.—New York was furnished an excellent pointer, e that marks the beginning of the end eveland and the free trade Democracy go to the rear this fall.

Republicans of the First Congres l District of Vermont have elected egates to the National Convention. The vention was a large and enthusiastic eering, and a significant incident was long continued applause that followed mention of Mr. Blaine's name. The ularity of the Maine leader is unaled.

he Republicans swept Hartford on nday, electing their mayor by 357 plurality, also treasurer and marshal. They ried 5 of the 8 wards for aldermen, giving them 11 to 5 Democrats, and in the mmon council 20 to 12 Democrats, or a epublican majority of 14 on joint ballot. his is a good start in Connecticut for the esidential year.

ome of the Democratic organs have n claiming a victory in the Dexter ction, but the Eastern State, published that town, says: "The report has gone t that the election in Dexter Monday s a Democratic triumph. The facts are at politics did not enter into the election, d the result was neither a Democratic or ublican triumph."

nder the iniquitous system of protection, against which the free traders rail th such vehemence, we have reduced importations of Brussels tapestry cars from 2,000,000 yards in 1868 to 68,000 rds last year, and in the mean time the t of carpets, through the active competition of American manufacturers, has n cut down about one half.

e Huntington (Ind.) Journal in reviewing wonderful strength of Mr. Blaine h the people says: "The nominee the Republican National Convention at cago in June next will doubtless be mes G. Blaine. There has been and can no concentration of public sentiment n any other person who may be ought of as a candidate, and the great tes that must be depended upon for election of the ticket are surely pointing to him as the one to whom they will timately give their support in the contion."

ere seems to be a lack of harmony in e ranks of the Maine Democracy. The Journal recently copied a paragraph t slipped the complacence Mr. Clifford etty severely, and now Editor Banker gs on the Plaisted gubernatorial boom ently started, in the Augusta letter to Boston Globe, as follows:

"tter wait, gentlemen, until the "country crowd" get into the convention and ar a few remarks from some of the Democrats, who do not wear the yoke."

he indications are that the Augusta vention will be a lively one.

ere are no less than four daily papers ine, each of which claim to have the est circulation in the State. It is very ent that three of them at least must mistaken but each will doubtless insist the accuracy of its figures, all of which ly goes to show that when papers get discussing their circulation it is difficult distinguish fact from fiction. The ald does not find it necessary to resort with figures to increase its advertising business, its columns being recognized as the best medium through which to reach the public of this section are always full, hence we are content to let the four papers with "the largest circulation" fight it out.

he Ohio Democratic tally sheet forgers escaped conviction at the hands of a partisan jury, but the people at Monday's election in Columbus administered a stinging rebuke. That city and Franklin County, in which it is situated, has a large Democratic majority, but the Republican Judge who had been appointed to a vacancy by Governor Foraker and who presided at the recent forgery trial, was re-elected by 500 or 600 majority. The Democrats made their whole fight against him and determined to defeat him as a punishment for his impartial rulings. But they failed ignominiously in their purpose. Martin, Democrat, who was a witness at the trial, thus earning the hatred of the corruptionists, was also re-elected by a large majority. He was supported by the Republicans.

When the returns are all in it may possibly be seen that the Republicans have even failed to elect their whole State ticket.—Commercial.

The Commercial cannot lessen the overwhelming defeat that has overtaken the Democrats in Rhode Island by holding out such false hopes as the above. Even the Providence Journal, a paper that did its best to secure the result eagerly looked for by our contemporary by scratching the regular ticket, is forced to make the following admission after summing up the returns:

Rhode Island has reversed its political action of last year, and it is Republican by absolutely the largest vote ever cast in the State, by a majority in general terms of about 2,000, making a change of about 3,000 from the vote for Governor last year. The General Assembly is Republican by a very large majority, ensuring the election of a Republican United States Senator.

One year of Democratic rule was enough for Rhode Island which now stands solidly in the Republican column of States.

The New York World finds solid comfort in the following paragraph from the Philadelphia Telegraph, "a Republican paper noted for its fairness":

As matters are now the Republicans have no more than a chance of winning in November, with the odds against them, while, as matters are going, a defeat will be so plainly attributable to bad generalship in behalf of purely selfish ends that one tolerably certain result will be that the more thoughtful and enlightened men of the party will seek new affiliations, and in other ways than through the agency of the Republican organization will endeavor to promote the ends which they regard as essential to the national welfare.

The Telegraph has been singing the same tune for some time and yet Pennsylvania, the State where its influence would naturally exist if it had any, can hardly be classed as a doubtful State, or one where the Republicans show any inclination to break away from their old affiliations. The Telegraph, however, gets advertised in the Democratic organs and that is what it is aiming at.

An open letter has been addressed to Governor McEnery by F. F. Herwig, chairman of the Republican State Committee, of Louisiana, asking him to investigate and act upon the following charges: A few days ago the Democratic Committee of Madison parish warned two Legislative candidates to leave home. These were Governor Hawkins and W. W. Johnson, members of the Legislature for several years past. No wrong-doing is imputed to them besides soliciting votes for the Republican ticket. After five days, not having heeded the injunction, Hawkins was taken under an armed guard to Vicksburg by the Democrats, and told not to return to Louisiana until after election. Mr. Johnson was again ordered away and at length a mob with guns broke into his house, and plundered it. He had fled, and was not caught. The invaders then went to the house of Johnson's brother and nephew, rousing the inmates and taking some property. Johnson reached Vicksburg in safety. Republicans are naturally indignant over this terrorizing policy of their enemies.

The Kansas Estimate of Mr. Blaine.

[Kennebec Journal.]

Thirty-two years ago last December there came to this city, on a confidential mission, two gentlemen interested in the Liberty contest then raging as to whether the unsettled territories of the Northwest should become free or slave States. These two gentlemen made the acquaintance of the two Augusta citizens then editing and publishing the Kennebec Journal. Their coming in our midst was to obtain financial means by which to purchase blankets, food, and other necessary supplies to enable the few thousands of Free State men of Kansas to maintain themselves against the armed raids of the pro-slavery men from Missouri.

These representatives of the imperilled liberty men of Kansas obtained the sympathy and something more of the young Augusta editors. How that memorable contest in the Northwest terminated is a matter of history. To-day Kansas is a great and prosperous State of almost two millions of people, abounding in churches, schools, colleges, newspapers, rapidly growing cities, possessing a remarkable network of railroads, and all the other chief agencies of commercial and political power. The following is what one of her principal citizens writes in one of the leading newspapers of Kansas, the State paper, the Topeka Capital, concerning one of those Augusta editors of thirty-two years ago. It is a striking tribute of the young giant commonwealth of the Northwest to one who sympathized with her in the stormy and perilous days of her infancy:

When the letter of Mr. Blaine, stating that he did not seek the nomination of President at the hands of the Republican party was made public a few weeks ago, it was believed by many that possibly some other name might be suggested, or agreed upon, who could successfully and victoriously lead the Republican hosts in the coming National campaign, but the attempted withdrawal of Mr. Blaine from the Presidential contest did not bring to the front any one supremely equipped to take his place and sufficiently strong in the affections of the people to be unitedly and prominently supported. On the other hand, contentions over candidates of mediocre ability have sprung up in various states, until numerous names are mentioned, scarcely one of which gives assurance of victory.

In this condition of affairs, the loyal and sturdy Republicans east, west, north and south are again turning strongly, earnestly and eagerly towards that prince of parliamentarians, that leader of leaders, that peerless statesman, James G. Blaine. It is undoubtedly true, that his late letter was sincerely and honestly written. He does not seek the trials and troubles of another Presidential campaign; he does not seek the burdens and responsibilities of the great Presidential office. His friends believe, however, that he is sufficiently self-sacrificing to accept the nomination for President, if his country makes the demand. His friends believe that he is sufficiently patriotic to be the leader of the Republican party and bear aloft its banner in the coming campaign, if the nomination in Chicago be unanimously tendered him. Indeed, his late letter has made him stronger in the affections of the voters of the nation, and James G. Blaine to-day is the choice of the Republicans of the country for President.

If the Republican host be led by this intrepid man this year, there can be no such thing as defeat. The people understand what his leadership means; they know that it means, when the necessary power is secured, justice to every human being under the American flag, to be asserted peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must. His defeat in the last Presidential canvass was accomplished by the frauds committed in the Southern States and a series of unparalleled accidents or incidents in the canvass in New York. They can never again recur. Since then, as before, the speeches of Mr. Blaine on all questions relating to American citizens of Irish descent, as well as the political position of Ireland and the Irish at home, have been marked and unmistakable. No candidate would arouse so great enthusiasm among the Irish voters in the United States, because he has denounced, as no other American, the unjust policy of England. In Connecticut, New York and New Jersey, thousands of Irish voters, who generally cast their ballots for the regular Democratic nominees, will support and sustain the candidacy of Mr. Blaine. That ablest and noblest of the Irish advocates, Patrick Ford, voices their sentiments, when he demands his nomination.

Further, the conduct of President Cleveland concerning the fishery question, and other transactions with England has not been such as to increase his estimation with the Irishmen of America. Then, the representative of America at the court of St. James, Mr. Phelps, has been so obsequious and cringing to the English aristocracy, that not only the friends of Ireland in this country, but, also, every true American has become disgusted and embittered not only towards him but to Cleveland, who is responsible for his appointment, therefore, with Blaine in the field against Cleveland the contest, although exciting and bitter, must result in the final verdict of the people of this Nation for Blaine.

Again, many circumstances have occurred during Cleveland's administration that specially point out Blaine as the leader against him. The last message of the President was devoted wholly to the principles of free trade; it had scarcely been promulgated before the wires from under the ocean brought the conclusive answer of Blaine to it; and with pride and satisfaction the American people with a united voice said, "Here is our champion." In the great fight for tariff and protection, Mr. Blaine shines supremely at his best. The wage-workers, the miners, the factory men, and the manufacturers throughout the country will rally to his side, uphold his hands, and sustain him with their votes.

Certain Protection.

To the business man, whose success or failure may depend upon a sudden turn in one direction or another, the failure of a customer here or there, or the happy or disastrous ending of a venture which now seems all fair and promising, nothing affords that certain protection against possible misfortune that is granted by an endowment policy in some first class Life Insurance company.—Detroit Free Press.

RHODE ISLAND'S VOTE.

The Majority Larger Than Indicated Yesterday.

The vote of the largest towns are as follows: Providence, Taft, Republican, 6,812, Davis, Democrat, 6,104.

The election of State officers is a sweeping victory for the Republicans. The city of Pawtucket sends a full Republican delegation of six Representatives and a Senator. The big town of Woonsocket sends a full Republican delegation of two Representatives and a Senator. With two or three exceptions, where the Democrats retained their hold, or where there was no election, the Republicans regained every town lost last year. One town, though Barrington, always Republican through thick and thin, was captured by the Democrats through local issues and personal feelings. The gubernatorial ticket was elected with but little variance in the vote of any of the candidates.

The independent opposition to the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor was largely offset by special efforts in behalf in Kent county, where he is a large mill owner.

In this city the full strength of the colored vote was called out by the fact that there was a representative of their race on both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

The Assembly stands: Senate—Republicans, 25; Democrats, 6, no election, House—Republicans, 54; Democrats, 10, Prohibitionist, 1; no election, 7.

THE CHIEF JUSTICESHIP.

What the President Is Said to have Said

NEW YORK April 5 A Washington despatch to the Evening Post says a friend of the Senator who had conferred with the President on the vacant Chief Justiceship says the President indicated these points First—he will promote no Associate Justice, second—he will not make an assignment from the South; third—he will not appoint any man over sixty years of age. He hopes to find a man from fifty to fifty-five, if possible, and prefers a western man.

FIFTIETH CONGRESS—First Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 5 Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, addressed the Senate on the subject of the President's annual message. He quoted figures contained in the last annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury, showing the receipts and expenditures of the Government for the last three years, the aggregate of receipts over expenditures being $178,000,000, or an average of 850,000,000 a year. The result thus disclosed, he said, presented a limit within which Congress should move in the matter of reducing the revenue However much Senators might differ as to the methods of reduction, all would doubtless agree that the revenue should be reduced.

Mr. Wilson continued to discuss the surplus question He granted the folly of collecting more than necessary for proper purposes of the government. He reviewed the Republican party glorified its work in saving the country, taking the government when it was bankrupt, fighting a great war successfully, restoring the National credit and reducing the debt. He said the party showed boundless capacity and undaunted courage It erred in following the Democratic land grant policy. Its protective policy, best to follow, was one to plant manufacturing establishments in every agricultural State, not concentrate them in a few large towns and cities That was also the best way to reduce the price of manufactured articles, because then the manufactories would be on the ground where raw materials and food supplies are produced and could consequently be procured cheaply

To follow the President's advice would not distribute or increase manufacturing plants, but embarrass those now established None of the various schemes urged by the opponents of protection would produce such happy results as have been witnessed in the cotton manufacturing industries of the Southern States in the past seven years. He suggests the removal of the duties on sugar and molasses, amounting to $8,000,000, as a means of guarding against an annual surplus of sixty millions He would admit free all sugar and molasses coming from countries which did not impose export duties on those articles and which admitted American products free European countries have adopted the principle [illegible] of paying a bounty to sugar producers Such would give an impetus to the production of sugar in the Western States

He criticised the President's suggestions on the subject of wool and said no one would infer from them that, under the tariff tinkering, the wool product of the country has fallen off 13,000,000 pounds in three years The President was not a skillful economic artist, his conception was not bold, his hand not cunning, and his presentation was pale, dull and flat After discussing the wool and flax questions as affecting farmers, Mr Wilson said the farmers should demand that articles produced by them should be taken from the free list and at least a moderate rate of duty be imposed upon them. He further said the way to get rid of the surplus without disturbing the industrial interests of the country was the abolition of the whiskey tax He should deeply regret the passage of any bill looking to a reduction of the revenue which did not make a pronounced start toward the ultimate elimination of the liquor tax from the law

At 3 o'clock the consideration of the Bond bill was resumed

Mr McPherson withdrew his amendment and the substitute bill as amended by Mr Beck was agreed to without discussion or division The bill was read a third time and passed and a committee of conference ordered The substitute bill thus adopted in place of the House bill was offered by Mr Spooner and is as follows

That section 2 of the act making appropriations for the sundry civil expenses of the government for the year ending June 30, 1882, and for other purposes and which is as follows "That the Secretary may at any time apply the surplus money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as he may consider proper to the purchase and redemption of United States bonds, provided the bonds so purchased or redeemed shall constitute no part of the sinking fund but shall be cancelled," was intended as a permanent provision of law and the same is hereby declared to have been since its enactment and to be now in full force and effect

Section 2—that whenever the circulation or any part thereof of any national bank, not in liquidation, be surrendered by a deposit of United States notes in the Treasury, or otherwise, and the same or an equivalent amount is not taken by other national banks within thirty days thereafter the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase, at the market price thereof, an equivalent amount in silver bullion in excess of the limit of two million dollars worth per month, for coinage purposes which shall be coined and used as provided in the act passed February 28th 1878, entitled "An act to authorize the coinage of the standard silver dollar, and to restore its legal tender character, provided that nothing in this act shall alter or repeal said act of February 28th 1878

The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of the bill to provide for the establishment of a bureau of animal industry to facilitate the exportation of live stock and their products and to extirpate contagious pleuro pneumonia and other diseases among domestic animals

After a couple of hours spent in reading the bill and report and various communications, one from the Commissioner of Agriculture criticising the bill adversely, and after some discussion the bill was laid aside without action

Mr Hawley, from the Committee on Military Affairs reported a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the Military Academy at West Point, Jose Andreas Urtecho of Nicaragua, passed

The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of executive business and then adjourned

House

The fight over the direct tax bill was resumed this morning, when at 12 45, the House met in continuation of the legislative day of Wednesday.

Mr Reed, of Maine, immediately demanded the regular order, which the Speaker announced to be a vote on the motion that when the House adjourn to-day it be to meet Saturday next

The motion having been defeated Mr Lanham, of Texas, raised a point of order that the day assigned for the consideration of the direct tax bill had expired and that to adopt any other construction would be to violate the intention of the Committee on Rules in reporting the assignment, and of the House in agreeing to it A clear construction of the assignment would show that it applied not to the legislative day but to the calendar day.

The Speaker disclaimed any power to adjourn the House and held that as long as the House refused to adjourn the legislative day of Wednesday would continue He recited many precedents for the decision and especially the precedent presented in the case of electoral commission bill when the legislative day extended over 300 calendar days He overruled the point of order.

The dreary round of roll calls on dilatory motions was then resumed.

The entire day was consumed in roll calls, not an incident of interest occurring. Finally, the wearied out House, at 5.10, by unanimous consent, took a recess until 11 40 to-morrow.

BASE BALL.

A Good Day for the Lowells.

LOWELL, Mass, April 5. Thirty-three hundred persons witnessed the opening ball game of the season between the Lowells and Dartmouths in a drenching rain. But three innings and a half were played. Score 11 to 0 in Lowell's favor. The Lowells batted heavily and fielded perfectly. Barney McLaughlin made a homerun. FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

A Train Plunges Into a Creek.

A Dozen Persons Killed and Fifteen or Twenty Injured.

NEW HAMPTON, Iowa, April 5 There was a terrible accident this morning, about four miles west on the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, by which at least a dozen persons lost their lives and from fifteen to twenty were injured. The train which left Chicago at 11.20 yesterday morning, due here at 2 13 this morning, passed here nearly on time. When about four miles west it plunged into a creek, the bridge being washed out by the creek being swollen by the floods In addition a gorge was formed which, previous to the arrival of the train, carried away a portion of the bridge. There was nothing to show that there was danger ahead and the train plunged into the swollen stream while running at full speed. The engine and three cars went into the creek and were immediately submerged in the torrent, which overflowed the banks. A scene of the wildest confusion ensued Those of the train crew and passengers who escaped death or injury immediately attempted to relieve

The Drowning and Pinioned Passengers

With great difficulty the passengers were reached, owing to the rushing of the waters through the car windows Those rescued from the smoking car, which was almost entirely submerged, were taken from the car windows, some maimed so that they could not help themselves and others nearly drowned before help reached them At 11 A M six dead bodies had been taken out of the wreck and three more were known to be underneath the debris, through which the water madly poured, so that it was difficult to reach them It is also stated that the engineer and fireman were instantly killed or caught in the cab and drowned The confusion and excitement was so great that it is difficult to secure reliable information In addition to the

from fifteen to twenty were rescued more or less seriously injured, a number so dangerously hurt that it is feared they cannot recover As soon as the train men who escaped injury could be spared one was despatched to the station with a relief train telegraphed for from Mason City Telegrams for relief were also sent to Charles City and other near-by places, but it was not until several hours that a train arrived with doctors to care for the injured and additional helping hands to aid in rescuing those still confined on the wreck

Onward, another of Mr. Nelson's valuable stallions, is also very sick with purpura hemorrhagica, which is a non contagious fever, with abnormal condition of the blood The death of either or both of these horses while not only entailing a very considerable loss upon their owner, will also prove to be a loss to the breeding ranks of Maine, which cannot be easily replaced. Onward is proving to be a popular sire by getting a class of horses of good size, color and disposition, such as the farmers can readily sell at a profit for business and driving purposes. All lovers of good horses will regret the loss Mr. Nelson has met with, and will unite in the hope that under the skillful treatment of Dr. Bailey Onward may be restored to health. CECILIA CLUB FESTIVAL

Another Grand Success Upon the Closing Day—Brilliant Matinee by the Beethoven Club—Enjoyable Concert by the Cecilia Club

The festival given by the Cecilia Club during three days of this week closed last evening, but, although the music has ceased, the memory of the occasion will linger in the minds of all who had the pleasure of attending one or all of the series of musical events which were arranged with such forethought and judgment by those who had the matter in charge The Cecilia Club deserves and has received high praise for the opportunity that has been given our people to hear a high order of music set forth in a manner that did it the utmost justice The results of the festival cannot but give a new impetus to the cultivation of music in this city, which is noted for its fine musicians and for the great interest that is taken in music among its people The Cecilia Club is doing excellent work in this direction and that the festival just completed has been a great success in every particular is shown in the universal commendation that has been heard upon every side

To the efforts of President C I Dakin of the Cecilia Club, the success of the event is due, and could he but hear half the exclamations of satisfaction that have been made at the outcome of the festival he would feel well repaid for his labors which have not been in vain Mr M H Andrews, the director of the club, must come in for a large share of the praise, for the careful and skillful instruction which the club has received under him is responsible in a great measure for the splendid performances given by the club A debt of gratitude is also owed to Miss Garland and Andrews Orchestra, who have so faithfully accompanied the club All of those who took part during the festival are to be sincerely congratulated upon its happy outcome The engagement of the Beethoven Club, of Boston, was certainly a grand idea, and that the anticipations as to the splendid class of music that would be presented by them, were fulfilled, has been shown in the unanimous sentiment of enjoyment at listening to them that has been expressed

MATINEE BY THE BEETHOVEN CLUB

The hall was packed yesterday afternoon upon the occasion of the matinee by the Beethoven Club which made such a fine impression the evening before The reputation of the club as an organization of artists was but strengthened, if, indeed, such was possible, by yesterday's performance, and during the time that the bows were being drawn back and forth, and the sweet notes of the flute were floating through the air, a pin might have been heard to drop, so still was it in the hall The enjoyment of the listeners found expression in frequent and prolonged applause, and the well known fact that Bangor people know and appreciate good music when they hear it was again made manifest The programme was made up of selections of rare merit and we think that the composers, could they have been present and heard the grand rendition of their works, would have found no cause for displeasure, but only of approval. The following was the

PROGRAMME:

1. Overture, "Raymond," Thomas

The selections by the club were rendered with delicacy, power and artistic finish, and the exquisite harmony that was brought forth from the dumb instruments in the hands of the skillful musicians, was a source of the keenest enjoyment to each hearer who could but feel its elevating influence As the delicious melody of each selection ceased, the audience burst into applause that was not feigned but came from the heart

Mr. Van Santvoord has not lost any of his great skill with the flute since his last visit to this city, where he always meets with a warm reception, and his splendid execution again proved his right to a place in the front rank of flutists The sweet, and mellow notes of his instrument were heard with great enjoyment and when they ceased at the conclusion of his solo, the appreciation of the audience was shown in prolonged applause Mr Van Santvoord was obliged to respond to a highly merited encore

Mr Fries, as on the previous evening, took his hearers completely by storm by his violoncello solo which was rendered as only he is able to do The charming tones that were brought forth entranced the ear of the listener, who felt the most generous pleasure at their sound The audience would not be satisfied without one response to the tremendous encore that was given, but would have doubly encored him for being satisfied Mr Fries most graciously responded with beautiful selections Mr Allen [illegible] made a deep impression by his splendid performance with the violin and his solo was a most enjoyable feature of the programme He played with ability and brilliancy, and gave much pleasure to all who were within sound of his instrument Mr Allen was heartily encored and responded

Mr Silsby made a very pleasing impression in his part and sang as usual with skill and expression Mr Moody was in excellent voice and was listened to with much favor He sang his solos in a most praiseworthy manner The singing of the club was strong and exact and rendered with splendid expression The cantata was given a delightful presentation and the club deserves great praise for the enjoyment afforded the audience last evening

Frederick Bryton in Forgiven

There will undoubtedly be large audiences at the Opera House next Monday and Tuesday evenings to witness the performance of "Forgiven" with Frederick Bryton as leading man The New York World says of the play and Mr Bryton

"Forgiven is one of the best combinations of humor and pathos in melo-drama that we have It holds an audience spellbound and it does it with the simplest and most natural means * * * Mr Bryton who is a remarkably handsome man carried the female portion of the audience with him, not alone by his manly bearing and picturesque costumes, but by his naturalness and his intense fervor He wins the sympathy of his spectators at once, and in the third act rouses them to unwonted excitement by his meeting with his enemy and his simple bravery and determination

Gorman's Spectacular Minstrels

Gorman's Spectacular Minstrels will appear at the Opera House next Wednesday evening The Buffalo Times has the following notice of the company

Minstrelsy in revised and refined form was presented at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening before a crowded house The performance was given by Gorman's Spectacular Minstrel Co which is made up largely of Haverly's old and best men While the entertainment opened with the usual olio, though even this was somewhat changed from the hackneyed style there were numerous specialties introduced that gave the bill a dash and brilliancy that has never been excelled here by burnt cork artists To go into detail, as the merits of the performance deserve, would take up space that cannot be given and it must therefore simply be said that Gorman's Spectacular Minstrels are the best on the road, and this is written after a careful consideration of what an assertion implies

GRAY FUR.

BY E. GERARD.

VI.

In less than an hour the sledge was at the door, a rough concern of unpainted boards, but able to hold half a dozen persons very comfortably. Hugo handed in Clara, and then got in opposite her. She feigned a little surprise, for they had not exchanged a word since her decision.

"Oh, are you coming, too, after all? I thought you had made up your mind to travel by the diligence."

"Of course I am going if you are," he said gravely, and it seemed to her almost a little severely. "You did not surely think I was going to let you go through the forest alone with strangers?"

He himself had been a stranger to her only two days ago, but he did not seem to remember this, nor did she. A great many things can happen in two days, and a journey of this kind is sometimes equal to weeks or even months of conventional intercourse.

There were two other passengers besides themselves, a small, highly colored man with a great deal of fur about him, and a lank red nosed individual wearing a shabby green overcoat. The ill-favored Jew took the reins and they drove away.

The snow had now ceased falling, probably because there was not any more to fall, and the sun was now free to shine out again, relieving the monotony of the snow clad landscape by diamond and crystal touches.

Leaving the high road soon after passing the village, the sledge struck into a side track over a desolate plain leading in the direction of the large pine forest which loomed black in the distance. A rough cart track at other times, but today the road was smooth and even, as though carpeted by the richest velvet. The air was keen but pleasant, for there was not a breath of wind, and after the confined traveling of the two past days the change was welcome.

Clara enjoyed it as she leaned back in the sledge, and thought over the events of the last two days. She felt so sure and safe near this tall, grave man, who from the first moment had assumed such a tone of protecting authority over her, and she was fain to confess that it was very sweet to be cared for and protected in this manner, she who had never yet had any one to care for and protect her. Her childish assumption of independence had been no more than an innocent piece of coquetry, for no delicate-minded girl likes to surrender to a man after so short an acquaintance. Now that she had leisure to think she felt no doubt that her answer to that question, interrupted just now in the stage coach, would be yes, but yet she preferred that this all-important yes should be spoken rather to-morrow than today, and was not sorry for the presence of those two other passengers, which rendered impossible all intimate conversation.

Hugo on his part did not seem to appreciate so highly the society of his fellow travelers, more especially the red nosed man in the green coat he eyed suspiciously, receiving his efforts at conversation with icy politeness, and failing even to be touched by his evident solicitude for the comfort and warmth of his companion, forever fidgeting with the rugs and blankets, and inquiring a dozen times within the first half hour whether the lady were quite comfortably seated, or if the gentleman were not in danger of freezing.

Soon the forest was reached, and they were speeding along between rows of somber fir trees, standing straight and close together like soldiers drawn up for battle. Every branch was piled up thick with furry snow, and now and then a twig discharged its contents on their heads as they drove along. Clara had to shake her fur cap repeatedly to free it from the snowy burden. Sometimes as she did so her eyes sought Hugo's gaze with a confidential expression.

"See! my head is oppressed with the weight of diamonds," she said once, as brushing against a low, overhanging branch the clustering fringe of icicles detached itself with a crisp sound as of broken glass, and came raining down thickly over her head and shoulders.

Despite his ill humor Hugo Weyprecht was betrayed into a genuine laugh as she thus appealed to him with irresistible merriment.

"And now your fortune is all gone," he said, bending forward and helping her to brush away the broken diamonds that were clinging all over the gray Astrakhan fur.

Then Clara laughed, delighted at feeling that she had a secret in common with him, and her laugh rang out so clear and joyous through the frosty air, that the little fur clad man laughed also without knowing why, which made Clara and Hugo laugh again, because they alone had the clue to all this merriment. Only the red nosed man did not laugh; perhaps because he failed to perceive any point in the joke, but went on fidgeting with the blankets as before.

All the undergrowth of little fir bushes was buried many inches deep in snow, their outlines totally effaced, or only barely indicated by a slight excrescence in the ermine carpet. Of a sudden the sledge made a violent lurch out of the track, there was a bound, a scuffle, and then the four passengers found themselves struggling in the snow. The driver had apparently mistaken the track, and driven them right over one of the buried bushes, which had thus caused the overthrow.

Hugo's first care was to disentangle Clara from her perilous position; the next was to feel for his revolver.

"It is gone!" he exclaimed in dismay, drawing out his hand from the empty pocket. "It must have fallen out here. It cannot be far off," and together with the red nosed and obliging fellow passenger he proceeded to search the premises. But in vain. The revolver was not to be found, not in the snow, not in the sledge, nor in the surrounding bushes.

"You villain!" now exclaimed Hugo, addressing the squinting coachman. "I do believe this is your doing. You upset us on purpose. Where is my revolver?"

"Wai! Wai!" moaned the Hebrew, who was sitting on a tree stump rocking his body to and fro with an agonized expression. "Can the noble gentleman suspect poor old Isaac of upsetting the sledge on purpose, when he has nearly killed himself in wishing to serve the noble Pan and the beautiful lady? Wai! Wai! May I never taste garlic again if my poor old bones are not broken! and all for serving the noble gentleman!"

Neither threats nor persuasion could extract anything further from the man, and no amount of search produced the missing revolver. With a moody brow Hugo at last ordered the Jew to drive on, warning him severely against any repetition of the like tricks.

It seemed, however, as if his suspicions had been without foundation, as for upward of three hours they drove on without further interruption. There was no more laughing and joking, but unconsciously Hugo relaxed his vigilant attitude. In less than two hours they might hope to reach the town.

The forest had now become very dark, for here the stems were of gigantic size, and the afternoon was already well advanced. Nothing was there to be seen on either side but the pine stems retreating in endless vista.

Hugo had turned his head to gaze at the blood red glory of the winter sun, showing at one point between the trunks, when suddenly the sledge came again to a standstill, but without overturning this time. The driver began to descend from his seat very slowly.

"What is the matter?"

"Gracious gentlemen, I think the left horse has got a stone in his hoof!"

"Not very likely in this deep snow," objected Hugo.

"Then perhaps it may be a twig," Isaac admitted, "but lame he assuredly is. May my only daughter never know happiness again if there is not something inside the hoof."

"Make sharp about it, then."

But the Jew did not seem inclined to make sharp. He moved as if cramped by rheumatism in every limb, probably on account of his late mishap, and then feebly set to work, alternately scraping and hammering at the horse's hoof, all the while loudly lamenting that he had ruined a good horse as well as breaking his own bones in the service of the gentleman.

"If you do not drive on at once I shall beat you to a jelly," at last roared Hugo, losing all patience; so, trembling sorely, the Jew remounted the driver's seat. He took another two minutes, however, to get fairly settled in his place, and was still fumbling with the reins when the passengers became aware that the sledge was surrounded by half a dozen men, who had silently emerged from behind the giant stems.

"Wai! Wai!" shrieked the Jew, throwing down the reins. "We shall be murdered and robbed. Wai! Wai!"

"Drive on, in God's name!" roared Hugo with stentorian voice, but the luckless coachman, apparently paralyzed by terror, could do nothing but rock his body and moan, "Wai! Wai!"

"Give us your money, good gentlemen, and we shall do you no harm," said the foremost of the band, advancing to the side of the sledge, while two others had planted themselves in front of the horses, and two others were busying themselves in cutting through the ropes by which Clara's trunk was secured behind the sledge. "We are poor devils who are dying of hunger and have no other way of getting our bread."

FOOD TESTS IN NEW YORK.

OFFICIAL ANALYSIS OF BAKING POWDERS—ADULTERATIONS IN CREAM OF TARTAR.

Under the direction of the New York State Board of Health, eighty-four different kinds of baking powders, embracing all the brands that could be found for sale in the State, were submitted to examination and analysis by Prof. C. F. Chandler, a member of the State Board and President of the New York City Board of Health, assisted by Prof. Edward G. Love, the well known United States Government chemist.

The official report shows that a large number of the powders examined were found to contain alum or lime; many of them to such an extent as to render them seriously objectionable for use in the preparation of human food.

Alum was found in twenty-nine samples. This drug is employed in baking powders to cheapen their cost. The presence of lime is attributed to the impure cream of tartar of commerce used in their manufacture. Such cream of tartar was also analyzed and found to contain lime and other impurities, in some samples to the extent of 93 per cent. of their entire weight.

All the baking powders of the market, with the single exception of "Royal" (not including the alum and phosphate powders which have not the virtue of even an impure cream of tartar), are made from the adulterated cream of tartar of commerce, and consequently contain lime to a corresponding extent.

The only baking powder yet found by chemical analysis to be entirely free from lime and absolutely pure is the "Royal." This perfect purity results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove the tartrate of lime and other impurities. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and on account of this greater cost is used in no baking powder but the "Royal."

Prof. Love, who made the analysis of baking powders for the New York State Board of Health, as well as for the Government, says of the purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal":

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates or other injurious substance.

E. G. LOVE, PH. D."

It is highly satisfactory to the housekeepers of this vicinity, where the Royal Baking Powder is in general use, that the investigations by the analysts in Massachusetts, New York, and Ohio, the only States that have thus far taken action upon this important subject, agree in classing it as the purest and most efficient baking powder in the market.

There seems to be a field for Browning missionaries in Rochester, according to the following story from the Rochester Union. Bookseller selling poetry to young lady—Here's a fine copy of Browning. You can't do much better than Browning these days. There's great interest in him now. Young lady—Oh, I've got Browning, but he simply worries me. I can't understand him at all. Bookseller, glancing along his shelf—Have you (hesitating) have you—(pondering) have you—(he sees a book)—have you Prayed, Miss? Y. L.—Oh, yes, I've prayed, but it doesn't seem to do any good. He's too obscure.

SPRING OF 1888.

Season of Turmoil and Trouble

TO THE HOUSEWIFE,

COLD DINNERS

TO THE HUSBAND.

To lighten the labors of the one, and shorten the cold dinner days of the other, THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO. respectfully tender its services, supported as it is by one of the best drilled corps of attendants, and backed by the largest and best stock of CHAMBER FURNITURE, PARLOR FURNITURE, CARPETING for the million, DINING-ROOM FURNITURE, SITTING-ROOM FURNITURE, HALL FURNITURE, LIBRARY FURNITURE, LODGE and CHURCH FURNITURE, and not alone this, but foreseeing the wants of the public, and endeavoring to locate ourselves where we could better attend to those wants, so that to-day we cover an area in the State of from point to point nearly 175 miles. That is, to customers residing in Kennebunkport, or near the New Hampshire line, our BIDDEFORD STORE, stocked with everything that heart can wish for house furnishing, will supply their wants near at home. On the other hand we have endeavored to place almost in the midst of the people of Eastern Maine, a store located at BANGOR, whose floors (which are very large) are groaning under their weight of all the different kinds and grades of FURNITURE, CARPETINGS, BEDDING, STOVES and RANGES, DRAPERY, SILVER-WARE and CROCKERY WARE, and all necessaries and essentials to the complete furnishing of homes. Then if you are in the vicinity of PORTLAND, you will find at our head-quarters here, probably the most extensive line of house furnishings ever carried in New England, and amounting in this establishment alone to over $150,000. To those resident in Androscoggin County, and points nearest to AUBURN, we would respectfully direct their footsteps to our large store there, probably one of the finest buildings in an architectural sense and best laid out furniture store in Maine. And again to those resident on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., or at Camden, Rockport, and all of those towns, we call particular attention to the ROCKLAND STORE, situated on Main St., and which is crowded with all the necessaries for house furnishing. And we can go further and say that at any one of these Branches, but more particularly at our head-quarters at PORTLAND, we hold ourselves ready at all times to send samples of Carpeting, photographs of Chamber and Parlor Furniture, and everything one can ask for, so that a selection can be made through the mail, without the troubles and trials of a journey at this time of year. Now please remember what follows. We thoroughly pack and deliver, freight prepaid to your depot, all goods sold by us, so that no expense attends the handling of the same, only the cartage from the depot to your house. Besides this, we guarantee all goods to be just as represented, or we will make them so. We go further still, and we defy all competition, buying as we do in a syndicate where millions are turned, we do not pay the prices that are paid by small dealers, and we want to be emphatic when we say that the lady or gentleman who buys goods without first investigating our stores, goods and prices, is not possessed with that proper idea of economy that one should have in the purchase of goods. We have thousands upon thousands of testimonials from all over the New England States from people to whom we have sold goods, and who have been so well satisfied with them that they desired to give us this expression of their good will, and why should we not use people right? We have everything to do with. We carry the largest stocks. We buy the best goods, and we buy them low.

And for the benefit of those who are anxious to know about how much they can furnish a parlor for, or a chamber, or hall, library, dining-room, or any other part of the house, we will quote a few prices, giving an outside price in each instance, that is, the lowest and the highest. You will please always understand that the goods are graded between these prices, that in some instances they vary $1.00 and in some $5.00.

Chamber Sets from $15 to $100. Over 1,200 sets in stock, made up from Pine, Ash, Cherry, Mahogany, Walnut, and the different imitations. A special feature this year is our low price for Antique Ash and Antique Oak. Parlor Sets from $28 up to $350. Upholstered in Ramie, Silk Plush, Crushed Plush, Mohair Plush, and Brocatelle. The frames are Oak, Cherry, Walnut, Mahogany, and the imitations. For sitting rooms we have all kinds of qualities and prices of odd pieces. Easy Chairs from $3.00 to $75.00. Lounges and Sofas from $3.50, $10, and up to $75. For Halls we have Hat-trees all the way from $5.50 to $75.00. We can give you a beautiful Hat-tree for $10. Then we have Settees and odd Hall Chairs, and tables that match. For dining-rooms we can give you an Extension Table from $4.75 up to $50.00, and made to order as high as you wish to go. Sideboards from $10.75 to $300. Dining Chairs from 50 cts. up to $25.00 each. Dinner Sets from $5.50 to $75. Silver-ware all prices. Water pitchers from $7.50 to $40. Now for the kitchen we can furnish you Ranges at $14.25 and from that up to $60. We also have all the requisites of the kitchen at all prices. In the line of Carpeting we probably excel all other dealers, from the fact that our purchases are larger than all other dealers put together in the whole of New England. Here we have Cotton Carpets, ranging from 20 cts. up. All Wool Carpets from 45 cts. up. Tapestry Carpets from 47½ cts. up. Body Brussels Carpets from 85 cts. up. Velvet Carpets from 90 cts. up. Axminster Carpets from $1.35 up. Wilton Carpets from $1.50 up. All these carpets, that is, the Tapestries, Body Brussels, Axminsters, Velvets, Wiltons we can furnish borders for.

Besides this we have a full and complete line of Cocoa Mattings for halls and entryways. Also Napier Mattings for kitchens and offices. We carry a full and complete line of Oil Cloths from 3 ft. wide, to 15 ft. wide, and the prices are anywhere from 25 up to $1.00 per yd.

If you have had the patience and interest to read thus far, please bear in mind what I say now. We have been before the public of New England for pretty nearly [illegible] years, formerly as the old house of B. A. Atkinson & Co., and now under our new name, and organized as a Corporation, and known as The Atkinson House Furnishing Co. And never in any instance have we advertised what we did not have. When we say we have $150,000 worth of stock in our Portland store and store-house, we mean that we have got just that much, and we mean that our experience in all these years leads us to believe that we know what to select and how to buy in order that we may put these goods on the market to satisfy our customers, and at prices which cannot be duplicated in any establishment in New England. This seems a strong statement, but remember the amount of business we do, which will reach this year one million. We are paying $15,000 less for rents than any other concern in the city of Boston, or any other city that we know of has to pay to do the like amount of business. This $15,000 is a direct benefit to our customers. Now to those who can not pay all cash, we hold ourselves ready at any and all times to sell them by our popular contract system, which means a quarter of the amount down at the time of purchase, and the balance in easy weekly or monthly payments. Come and see us. We do not care whether you visit the Portland store, the Biddeford store, the Auburn store, the Rockland store, or the Bangor store, you will receive a like treatment in them all. You will get uniform prices in them all, and if you care to save money in your house furnishings, you must come to our establishment first.

It will do you no harm to see the stock, get some points, and get our prices. If we have not spoken truthfully, then look somewhere else, but come and see us.

Respectfully, the Public's Obedient Servants,
